Happenings of Interest from Different Sections.

In December there were 77 deaths in Burlington, 44 being from influenza.

George Thayer, a promising young man of Vernon, died at a hospital in Brattle-bare recently following an operation. Walter Fuller of Keeseville, N. Y., is in Franklin county court on the charge of stealing a fur coat while working in

A. R. Hopper, a railroad man residing at South Londonderry, died of pheumonia following influenza, Jan. 2, and his wife died of the same disease Jan. 6.

Samuel H. Yeaw, manager of the Austine farm in Brattleboro for five years, died last Thursday night of heart exhaustion following influenza. He was 65

On account of ill health, Miss Edith Chamberlain has resigned her place as teacher in the Richford second grade and has been succeeded by Miss Katheryn Gitchell of Montpelier. The death of Mrs. Helena May Cameron of Middlebury Friday night from influenza, makes the fourth member of the family to die of that disease in two months. She leaves her husband and one daughter. Ernest J. Waterman, who recently resigned his position as trust officer of the Brattleboro Trust Co., has accepted a position as manager of the trust department of the Citizens National bank in New York City and, with his family, will go to that city this week.

Three churches in Putney, the Baptist, Congregational and Methodist, have voted to consolidate for one year, further action to be taken at the expiration of that time. The services will be held in the Congregational church and the minister will be a Baptist.

State's Atty. W. R. McFeeters of St. Albans returned home Friday from Camp Devens, where there has been a continuation of the William Craig investigation. Craig was found unconscious beside a country road near Highgate a short time ago and died without gaining conscious-

In Brattleboro during 1918 there were 69 marriages, as against 259 for the previous year before the Dunham marriage law went into effect; 155 births compared with 185 the year before, and 222 deaths compared with 178 in 1917. The Dunham marriage law compels five days notice of intentions to marry.

BUTTER MAKERS' SHORT COURSE.

University of Vermont Offers Course for Buttermakers Jan. 27 to Feb. 1.

Many requests for a short course of instruction have been received from buttermakers throughout the state who can not get away from their creameries for a longer time. To meet this situation the dairy department of the University of Verment is offering special course of instruction for such men from Jan. 27 to Feb. 1 inclusive.

The week will be devited to practical work in the university creamery supplemented by lectures and discussions under the supervision of instructors from the agricultural college and the forces of the commissioner of agriculture. Emphasis will be laid upon the following: Starters and Starter-Making-There will be received on a commercial scale and the students will pasteurize it and then ripen it with starter for buttermak-

Control of Composition of Butter-The butter churned will be tested for salt and moisture and methods for controlling these as well as the fat and asein will be discussed and practiced. Scoring and Judging Butter-The butter made in the laboratory together with several samples of western butter and the entries in one of our educational corings will be scored and judged. Other subjects which will receive attention are creamery practice, accounting, marketing, and cottage cheese mak- = ing from surplus skim milk. The course while primarily planned for creamery buttermakers will be none the in fair sized farm dairies. It will be open to anyone who has had experience in buttermaking provided as many as fifteen applications are received by Jan. 22. Each application must be accompanied by $5, which will be charged as a fee to pay for materials used in the laboratory for the week. In case there are not enough applications received to warrant giving the course, all applicants will be so notified and their deposi refunded on Jan. 23. Each student should have a white suit. These may be pur chased in Burlington. All applications and requests for further information should be addressed to Prof. H. B. Ellenberger, University of Vermont, Burling
